

ENVIR 495 C: Landscape Change in the Pacific Northwest

SUMMER COURSE

Summer 2016

5 credits

Counts for P&E: Human & Social, Bioregional or Fieldwork

Online plus required
wilderness backpacking trip: 7/9–7/17
Course fee: $100

Instructor: Tim Billo

Contact timbillo@uw.edu
for more info

In this course, examine the cause and consequences – both for nature and society – of loss of wilderness landscapes in the Pacific Northwest.

- How has the regional landscape changed in the distant and recent past, and how will it continue to change?
- What were the historical movements and circumstances that led to change in some parts of the landscape, and preservation of other parts?
- What do these changes mean for our future, from ecological, psychological and philosophical standpoints?

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON | PROGRAM ON THE ENVIRONMENT