

Brittany Gallagher

Brittany Gallagher is the External Affairs Manager for The Nature Conservancy's Washington state chapter. In this role, she works primarily with the Government Relations and Communications teams to advocate for policy and funding solutions to urgent environmental problems. Brittany has a Bachelors degree in Communications from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, a Postgraduate Diploma in Geography from the University of the South Pacific and a Master of Environmental Studies from the Evergreen State College. She has worked for TNC since 2015, after more than ten years of focus on international development and education in Europe, Africa and Asia. She lives on the traditional lands of the Puyallup and other Coast Salish peoples near Tacoma, Washington.
